

Isolationism

Introduction

As we begin to evaluate the fallout in society from the Covid-19 global hysteria we begin to see what permanent effects are taking place in the community. This is part of the global elite's strategy to further control populations and keep them under effective curfews.<sup>1</sup>

Community

The idea of community and interdependence is central to society. The reason is that community and interdependence originate in the Godhead and man, as the creation of God, is meant to follow the principles that are active within the Godhead.

The Trinity is a community of love and commitment based on the equality of the three Persons. All have their differing functions but all are committed to the same goal and fellowship in perfect love towards each other.

Thus communities of people in villages, families, tribes, clans, cities, towns and nations are microcosms<sup>2</sup> of the community that exists in the Godhead. This is why people are naturally disposed to gather in unions of one sort or another for mutual strength and security. One stick is easily broken but a gathering of sticks tied together is hard to break.

Communities that contain individuals committed to the whole are strong and provide security for the weaker members of that society. History proves that families, communities, and nations work.

This is illustrated in many forms. The best movies often involve a depiction of a sense of community in some form; the smallest unit of community being a couple of people (buddy films). Examine many popular films and you'll see that the core is a sense of community whether it is the Magnificent Seven, Downton Abbey or the Sound of Music.

The idea of community is absolutely vital to life on Earth and it is God's method of living.

Community is where we love and support one another; where the rich help the poor and the strong help the weak.

The global elite plan

The wicked global elite understand the importance of community and it is their plan to obliterate all forms of community and replace them with fascist state control.

<sup>1</sup> In Victoria, Australia, the power-mad premier has actually installed a real curfew from 8pm for no logical reason. Police chiefs have threatened to drag people out of car windows that do not obey state restrictions.

<sup>2</sup> A community, place, or situation regarded as encapsulating in miniature the characteristic qualities or features of something much larger.

The elite are Luciferian Marxists, at least in general principles, and Marxism openly sought to eradicate the family, religion (especially Christianity), and the capitalist democratic nation state. The elite are in the process of doing this today through a false pandemic.

This is the plan:

Get rid of nation states

Nation states are an obstacle to global control by an elite and so must be obliterated. Nations must disappear and merge into huge federalised unions like the EU. These continental unions can then be more effectively controlled. So we see the principles of open borders, centralised banking, centralised tax, centralised armies, federal government and federal courts. Sovereign states must fade away and be more and more integrated into a federal system of government.

Destroy the family

The family unit must be gradually disposed of by undermining all the basic constituents of family life. This is done incrementally through tax reforms discriminating against families, programming children in schools, conditioning kids to be isolated (e.g. focused on their mobile phone, video games etc.), making parents more and more busy trying to earn a living and having no time for family, deceiving women by Feminism into working and leaving the home, making it normal to abandon kids to the care of someone else from an early age, changing sexual mores so that a mother and father become obsolete, and so on.

The ultimate goal is that families don't exist and children are cared for by the state and are fully indoctrinated to be conditioned for elite-decided roles. A Brave New World!<sup>3</sup>

Historic foundations of society must be overwhelmed

One way this is done is by the mass migration of aliens from very different cultures swamping western 'Christian' nations and demanding that multiculturalism and diversity means that immigrants establish their own cultures in ghettos rather than be assimilated into the culture they want to join.

The elite plan in this was to deliberately mongrelise western 'Christian' nations by mixing up various races to form a homogenous lump as far as possible. Failing that, to establish multiple different community types so that the existing 'Christian' model (that was formed over 2,000 years) is eradicated. By doing this, the features of 'Christianity' in society (Christmas, Easter, Sunday as a special day, etc.) are removed. For example, in Birmingham where Whites are now a minority, Christmas is not officially celebrated by the council but Divali is.<sup>4</sup>

This process is further exacerbated by demonising White people and changing the history of White cultural achievements (which are huge). The elite seek to create a new narrative which avers that western, White, Christian people are responsible for all the ills in the world and that historical imperialism was nothing more than state sponsored theft and piracy. While western empires were not perfect by any means, and these evils should be discussed openly, certainly the British Empire did far more good than evil. Many foreign nations would still be in barbaric dark ages were it not for British imperialism. For example Britain gave India a functional, unified civil service, a continental-wide railway system, roads, bridges, viaducts, aqueducts, cleared swamps, steam engines, a basic industrial revolution, freedom from brigands, law and order, cricket, national security, reforms of cruel customs (such as suttee)<sup>5</sup> and much more. The example of governments since the British left have been far from perfect.

<sup>3</sup> Brave New World is a novel by Aldous Huxley published in 1932. It describes a dystopian future society where life is pain-free but meaningless. People are hatched by the state and conditioned to perform in society according to a caste system, from potential leaders to manual labourers. For example Delta infants are programmed to hate books and flowers, which helps to make them docile consumers. Programming also takes place while children sleep.

Get rid of religion

There has been a concerted, continual attack on religion by the elite, especially Christianity, for over 100 years. This has taken many different forms, some subtle, some overt but all deceptive.

The point is to get people to despise religion and to think humanistically or nihilistically; elevating, on the one hand, science, rationality and philosophy, but on the other hand, folly, doubt, mysticism and Postmodernism. The point is to either elevate intellectualism and say that religion is stupid and irrational (there is no God), or to elevate emotionalism and affirm mysticism and doubt are the way forward (you are your own god).

Either way the point is to make people abandon institutional religion and faith in a superior, transcendent God so that they have no moral compass in life and will follow the conditioning of the elite. This is why evolutionary theory has been so effectively promoted despite its inherent follies.<sup>6</sup> It focuses creation and life upon the animal and displaces any idea of a transcendent creator God. Marxists want God to be eradicated from society.

Getting people to despise Christianity in particular is vital in order to take over western nations that were built on Christian principles and institutions going back centuries. To remove the obstacles of certain bedrock principles in society you must first make people despise or ridicule Christianity, which established those principles and forms.

It has been the slow, steady march of Cultural Marxism throughout the institutions of society since 1921 that has succeeded in largely destroying the effects of Christianity in culture.

Some specific examples include: a Christian-based school assembly with prayers and hymns; proper teaching of divinity in schools, destroying Sunday as a day of rest and peace; removing the Bible as the only source of truth in courts; introducing unbiblical elements in state churches such as Gay priests or female priests; getting rid of the epilogue on state television; repealing or altering blasphemy laws (encouraging occultism); repealing homosexuality laws; eradicating Christianity as a default in the armed forces; demeaning marriage from being a man and a woman; encouraging evolutionary theory at every opportunity, and so on.

Now to Christians none of these things are important because we are not part of the world, but they are important factors in the development of national culture.

The use of hate to fragment society

The elite strategy is to foment cultural upheaval by dividing society into several distinct groups and foment hatred of one against the other: Black against White, men against women, women against men, straight against Gay, residents against immigrants and so on. Thus we have a focus on multiculturalism, diversity, Feminism, LGBTQ, Black Lives Matter etc.

<sup>6</sup> E.g. reptiles suddenly decided to turn into birds – but all the intermediate processes in this conversion (new brain, new bone structure, new blood system, new muscular system, growing wings with feathers etc.) would have killed the animal and provided no biological advantage until the process was complete.

This rivalry is increased by creating laws to promote the protection of one group, while reducing the rights of everyone else. Such as hate laws, anti-discrimination laws, quotas for diversity and Feminism in employment and so on.

The elite then funds and promotes protests and demonstrations by each of the groups to demand more rights and remedy illusionary wrongs. This is enhanced by promoting the idea of victimhood in all the different strata of Intersectionalism (identity politics). The alleged victims are given false superiority while the alleged perpetrators (always White people) are condemned. Violence often ensues, which suits the elite nicely, especially if it spins off into civil war.

Summary

The elite's plan in all these things is to destabilise and break 'Christian' society so that it can be remade into a 'new normal'. With the historic forms removed the populations are more susceptible to federal, totalitarian control with many restrictions on personal freedom. The 'new normal' is a satanic, increasingly totalitarian society.

The underlying trend is to destroy the foundations of historic community. Traditional, effective, cherished forms of communal life are ruined and replaced with instability.

The current viral crisis

Although the plans of Cultural Marxism have been effective in removing many stable forms of western culture, this was not quick enough for the global elite. They needed a severe change in society to achieve their goal of world domination that had been postponed several times. This domination is now planned for 2030 under the UN's Agenda 2030 sustainability plan, which goes alongside the Rockefeller 'Lock-Step' plan (2010)<sup>7</sup> and the goals of the World Economic Forum.

The artificially produced pandemic crisis was the means to make massive, sudden changes in society to obliterate community. On the basis of creating mass hysteria and terror about a virus that could kill everybody, the elite have managed to create massive change in the way society does things. The chief effect is to destabilise and ruin historic community and replace it with isolationism. The elite's objective is always to reverse the attributes of God reflected in the world, such as love, peace, harmony, goodness, wisdom, righteousness and community. In their place are: hate, disturbances, discord, badness, stupidity, wrong behaviour, and isolationism.

Note all the effects of the virus leading to unprecedented deleterious government imposed restrictions.

- Initially a quarantine of the elderly, even though they were not sick.
- Removing children from school, even though the virus is almost harmless to kids.
- The national lockdown, so that all people were unable to leave their house except for short periods for essential matters. Yet the virus spreads easier in indoor situations and lack of sunshine inhibits the immune system. People were arrested for going to parks and beaches. Even after the lockdown was eased the police arrested people wild-camping.

- Terminating all forms of social culture: churches, theatres, comedy clubs, music venues, cinemas, pubs, restaurants and so on. Yet these things contribute to health.
- Forcing most people to work from home. Yet in most cases this worsens health outcomes.
- Mandatory masks on public transport and in shops. Which cannot stop a virus but does damage health.

After the lockdown was eased many forms of culture were still halted: churches, comedy clubs, gyms, skating rinks, music venues etc. Singing was made into a dangerous exercise.

In addition we had social distancing regulations so that people were isolated from each other in society. Workers had to be six feet apart so no business, such as a bank, could operate properly. Massive queues developed in all shops and supermarkets with people standing six feet apart and only two or so people being allowed in shops at any one time. This discriminated against the elderly, weak and frail that cannot queue.

What was the purpose in all this?

It was to impose social isolation. This has multiple benefits for the elite.

First it engenders psychological disorders and makes people ineffective. It creates docile populations of confused, mentally sick people. It is proved that social isolation causes mental disease, especially amongst children; the CIA describes it as effective torture.

Second it further assists social control. It deceives people into following draconian, fascistic policies through fear. It is a form of compliance testing.

Third it helps to enable control through constant surveillance. This was enhanced by the demand (not law by the way) for tracking and tracing people who went into shops as they had to give personal details just to buy a drink (which is currently illegal).

Fourth it minimises a sense of local community. This was heavily damaged by the demand for office workers to work from home. Some businesses are now saying that either workers will continue to work from home until next summer or that they stay working from home forever. The idea of working communally in an office is now actually under threat.

This alone has massive ramifications for society, which have not been realised.

- It will create a lack of demand for office space. This will have enormous repercussions on the property market and the economy.
- The crash in offices will lead to huge cuts in demand for utilities (power and water). It will also lead to loss of business rates to town councils – this will force domestic council tax upwards.
- It will mean the closure of all the local shops that catered for office workers locally: coffee shops, sandwich bars, cafés, pubs, restaurants etc. The closure of offices could spell the end for the high street shop. This alone will devastate the local community of a town.
- It will vastly reduce the market for transport services into urban centres: trains, buses, underground etc. In many rural areas public transport could cease altogether.
- It could lead to a crash in car demand, as people no longer need to commute.

- It will turn some urban areas into a wilderness.

All these things will have enormous consequences to the economy, but worse they all ruin the sense of local community. The policy forces workers into isolation which also has repercussions yet to be seen. Even after three months of lockdown, some home workers are finding life intolerable – trying to work surrounded by screaming kids, trying to self-discipline themselves, failing to get a change of environment, loneliness, putting on weight etc.

It also has business repercussions. Offices, as communities, often saw innovative policies develop through the natural intercourse of office workers. Some of these were unexpected and could not have been envisaged but led to big successes. This natural breeding ground of innovation has been curtailed by social isolation.

Badges of isolation

The demand to wear a facemask entering a shop is a folly beyond all follies. I won't explain this as I have done so in my paper 'Mask-erade'. Suffice to say that masks are completely ineffective against a virus that is sub-microscopic.

But what masks do is to expose compliance with draconian social policy; it exposes the dissenters. The mask wearers become the herd of docile drones that have utterly capitulated to madness. Worse than this, the elite are laughing their socks off since the masks actually create disease. You can get very sick from wearing a facemask for long periods of time. I have already seen an old lady collapse on the pavement with breathing difficulties because of a mask. Expect a rise in multiple medical conditions brought on by increased blood pressure, oxygen deprivation, suppressed immune systems, CO<sub>2</sub> inhalation and virus / bacteria build up.

Psychologically facemasks are further attempts to separate people from each other. It is stopping you converse normally face-to-face. It is hindering public intercourse by hiding your visage. It is another form of isolation.

Masks are also badges of submission and dehumanisation – something else that the elite is trying to establish. This is further damage to the human personality and community.

Watch out for the next step in elite-forced isolation when governments begin to enforce wearing gloves at all times. This will be another form of social isolation – one dare not touch another person. Already handshaking has been banned.

Create fear of human contact

Facemasks are like muzzles; they prevent a person speaking properly and hide facial gestures, which are vital to communication.

In Wild West films bandits put bandannas over their mouths to hide their identity. Facemasks equally hide our identity. They block our humanity.

But worst of all, fear of an imaginary pandemic has made people fear each other. People panic and jump into the street if you get too close in walking down the street. People are scared of other innocent people.

When you get people that fearful of each other, you have achieved a certain degree of social control way above normality. People should be afraid of their wicked government; instead they submit to stupid government demands and instead are afraid of each other.

We know that the wearing of facemasks is of no use in staving off a virus. We must surely know that the government mandate is also false since the epidemic is now over, herd immunity is achieved, Covid deaths have virtually ceased and the excess deaths are less than the five-year average. Since facemasks were not required at the supposed height of the pandemic in March and April, why are they necessary now that the peak is long over? This is proof of a government agenda that has nothing to do with health but everything to do with control.

Engendering hate

The demands for self-isolation in social distancing and masks have created a divide in society. The minority understands that masks are pointless and refuses to wear one; the vast majority see this as a severe threat to their existence (which is insane) and then turns on the minority with vehement hatred.

A group of doctors in America<sup>8</sup> stood together in unison in a public press conference trying to bring some sanity into the narrative. They explained that there's no need to fear, that Hydroxychloroquine is an effective prophylactic and that masks are pointless. These were all top quality physicians. Despite this there were groups of maniacal hecklers screaming and shouting at them while wearing masks. The maniacs vented hatred towards doctors who daily try to save lives. This is what the government's measures have released.

Just as the Cultural Marxists have successfully set Black against White, women against men, residents against immigrants, straight against Gay, they have now set compliant mask wearers against dissenters. The dissenter has become the new outcast even though the dissenters are the ones with detailed information about the issues involved and the attackers are merely government dupes with no rationality or intellectual curiosity.

Drones

What the elite are trying to create is a hive-type society. In the bee world the queen is absolutely paramount and must be protected. Each year she produces hundreds of eggs that hatch into the workers in the hive. Most of the workers are mere drones that do all the labouring and feed the queen. A few are males that may get to mate with the queen. There is no democracy, no rights for expendable drones, the demands of the queen are paramount.

This is the sort of society the elite craves. It wants, first, massive depopulation so that only 500 million populate the planet. Then it wants the vast majority of the remaining population to be mere servicing drones to keep the infrastructure going where AI robots can't be effective. These drones are serfs with no rights and no freedom; they live to satisfy the elite.

Over time the elite plan to condition people to be more and more compliant to their own destruction and this is working. See the masses that wear the masks with no compunction. Indeed, many are currently wearing a mask in the street and in their cars when this is not mandatory. Unnecessary fear has brainwashed them into complete submission; they are already drones.

Drones are isolated. They function in their own compartment and have no mobility or freedom. They only do what the elite want them to do.

This isolation is a form of slavery or bondage and it is already rampant in society.

Examples of specific evil caused by isolation policies

Example 1<sup>9</sup>

A 90-year old lady had a 69-year old daughter who was dying of cancer in a hospice. She hadn't seen her daughter for months due to the lockdown and heard that her daughter didn't have long to live.

The lady drove to the hospice desperate to see her daughter but was refused entry to the hospice at the door. Worse, she was verbally reprimanded by the manager for trying to come in and was told that she was putting herself and everyone else at risk. Her daughter died a few days later.

The old lady, in a distraught situation, told her story to a cancer charity advisor, who was distressed by the call.

Example 2<sup>10</sup>

A grandmother tested positive for Covid-19 and was locked in a Covid ward in a hospital. As a result she was unable to see her family and say goodbye before she died. In fact her cause of death was actually cancer.

The granddaughter tried to recover her grandmother's belongings, which had a sizeable value since it included all her jewellery that she was wearing when admitted. After months of wrangling with the hospital, it turned out that the government guidance for Covid patient's belongings was to dispose of the items. The hospital admitted that all the jewellery was probably disposed of, along with her clothing. This caused great distress to the family having lost heirlooms.

This absurd guidance has probably cost potentially millions of pounds of valued items from thousands of elderly patients. In fact sterilisation of jewellery is very simple – but the evidence is that Covid-19 is not transmitted by touching surfaces anyway.

Example 3<sup>11</sup>

An old lady went to the supermarket to buy necessary food and offered Sterling currency, which is legal tender. She was refused (which is illegal). She explained that she had no credit cards and no bank account but did things 'the old way'. The shop refused her custom leaving her unable to buy food. This is shocking.

In another similar case, a number of people were similarly refused at another supermarket but the manager took their cash personally and paid for their items on her own credit card. When they found out, the senior management sacked her.

These actions are illegal but also nonsensical since it has been firmly established that Covid-19 is not transferred by touching surfaces.

Conclusion

Isolation is a form of cruel punishment, hence its use as a serious punishment in prisons (solitary confinement). It causes mental and physical afflictions.

Isolation policies are designed to overturn centuries of community principles that hold society together. Community is important because it marks humanity as the creation of God and represents the loving community within the Godhead. All human life is subdivided into smaller and larger communities that have purpose and fall within the boundaries established by God, from families to nations.

The global elite hate God and want to eradicate normal communities and replace them with state control whereby citizens become serfs and drones in a totalitarian society. The Covid-19 hysteria has been the means whereby the elite have been able to massively change culture, business and social life in a short period. These changes have worsened human existence, ruined communities, wrecked culture, crashed the economy, unnecessarily killed people, increased government surveillance and instigated the beginnings of totalitarianism.

If people continue to submit to draconian false regulations, the evil plans of the elite will continue until there is a single, fascist dictatorship over the world. The next step will be mandatory vaccines, that give you a Covid pass, that are necessary for life; no vaccine = no job, no travel, no access to the NHS and no money.

While Christians do not protest and demonstrate about political matters, they must refuse to bow the knee to draconian, antichristian laws and non-statutory regulations because that is submission to something false and ungodly. Fellowship normally with each other; worship together; serve one another; help the needy. Ignore government isolation policies.
