Introduction

The establishment, the ruling powers in society, often speak in complete hypocrisy. Being centred on wickedness and deception it is common that their strategies often oppose each other, but this is covered up and obscured. Thus it is frequent that outright lies are spouted by politicians and these lies are parroted by the mainstream media, which is the real fake news.

This paper highlights a case in point. I want to expose a very obvious and clear contradiction between the policy of the establishment on science and its policy on Gay issues. They are completely at war with each other.

This paper is not a bombshell because it is an obvious contradiction visible to anyone of an independent mind. Why it has not been given widespread exposure before is beyond me.

The establishment position on one of the prime factors of modern science

I am referring to the theory of evolution. Now I say 'theory' because that is what it is. In fact it is a theory that has been disproved multiple times by Christian and secular scientists<sup>1</sup> and yet the establishment insists that it is a fact.

Every arm of the establishment affirms that evolution is true, scientific and certain. This is taught to kids in primary and secondary schools. It is taught in colleges and universities. It is taught by mainstream scientific journals. It is held in the halls of science academia and you cannot get research grants unless you swear to it.

It is taught everywhere in the media. Some of the population's favourite scientists, like David Attenborough or Brian Cox are staunch defenders of it. TV documentaries publicise evolution at every chance they get, even when it is preposterous to do so (Attenborough has done this many times). Darwin was once voted as the top man of science.

So, evolutionary theory is accepted as a scientific fact by the establishment. Thus it is not surprising that many repercussions of the theory are the foundation of positions in society. In many changing aspects of society it is evolution at the base of new trends. The reason is that human nature is changed from being a moral, rational creature made by God in the image of God, into a mere accident of nature. Man is nothing more than a successful element of nature that will have its day and then fade away. Man arose from nothing but chemical soup that accidentally developed proteins.

Thus changes to human beings are accepted today as the normal effect of evolution. Transgender issues, for example, arise from evolutionary theory, proposing that people can adapt and change from one thing into something else; in this case a different gender.

<sup>1</sup> For instance: life is irreducibly complex; there are no simple life forms. No animal has ever increased its genome. There are no transitional forms whatsoever. Mutations decrease the DNA information and thus lead to negative impacts, never positive. Blood cells, collagen and soft tissue found intact in dinosaur bones prove that they are not millions of years old.

Various elite organisations are currently working on ways to depopulate the planet. Evolution is always behind any Eugenics project – people are just animals that can be disposed of and culled as required. The fittest survive and the weakest are eliminated.

So, the survival of the species of man is based upon the evolutionary construct that those who can adapt and reproduce can pass on beneficial changes to their offspring and advance the species to face new challenges or utilise beneficial mechanisms in their environment.

The New Oxford Dictionary says this about Darwinian evolution:

Darwin [proposed] a theory of gradual evolution over a long period by the natural selection of those varieties of an organism slightly better adapted to the environment and hence more likely to produce descendants.

The ‘production of descendants’ is the critical component of evolution. Gaining adaptations better suited to the environment is pointless if it only lasts one generation. Reproduction is the crucial key to evolutionary success. Flourishing animals on the planet today are those that have developed the best ways to ensure reproduction success.

So, by definition, the establishment’s central thesis, for its root scientific principle, is that the ability to reproduce is vital to life. Something that cannot reproduce contradicts evolution and is therefore pointless and damaging to future species success. According to evolutionary theory, any animal that cannot reproduce is going to be cast off by natural selection and vanish from the earth because it is pointless.

This is a fact. It is undeniable. Establishment science only supports those animals that can reproduce. Creatures unable to reproduce are nature’s cast-offs, nature’s mistakes, nature’s failures.

Homosexuality

To say that the establishment has pushed homosexuality on to the modern world as a normal part of society is an understatement. Society has gone from locking up homosexuals as criminals to legalising homosexual marriage. [I don’t condone oppression of any minority, I simply record this as a historical fact.] Open homosexuals have come to dominate certain aspects of society, such as television presenting, acting, radio presenting, theatre, movies, media and so on.

So, it is simply axiomatic that homosexuality is fully supported by the establishment. I will not delve here into why this is, I simply record the fact of it.

Today there is a flourishing homosexual and lesbian aspect to society that operates openly and proudly; note the Gay marches around the world. In fact, favour is given to the Gay community above heterosexuals. Homosexuals that commit lewd acts in the street during Gay marches and other situations and are not locked up; heterosexuals doing this would be in prison. People refusing homosexual business transactions are prosecuted and fined. People criticising a Gay lifestyle as wrong are convicted of hate crimes and imprisoned – thus contravening the Common Law foundation of free speech and free thought.

So, the establishment not only supports and promotes homosexuality with a passion, it also issues sanctions against those who are opposed to this. The establishment is the champion of Gay issues.

The inherent problem

What is ignored by the establishment-controlled media is that the support of homosexuality utterly contradicts the establishment support of evolution.

The prime problem for homosexuals is that they cannot reproduce, and thus fall foul of evolutionary principles. If the world's population adopted homosexuality, the human race would be extinct after one generation.

Homosexuality is utterly against the principles of evolution. Thus it cannot be good, cannot be beneficial to mankind and cannot be right. It is certainly not supported by establishment science.

It is inherently impossible for the establishment to promote evolution on the one hand and also homosexuality on the other. If it continues to do this, the establishment, by definition, disgraces itself and makes itself irrational and irrelevant.

This means that schools, universities, colleges, governments, media organisations, TV channels, the press and so on, all have to reconsider their position and make a choice. If they don't, then they can be dismissed as irrelevant, irrational liars.

It is one thing for the establishment to push a lie on the population (which it does every day); but it is quite another to push two contradictory lies upon the public at the same time and expect no repercussions.

Conclusion

You can't have it both ways; either homosexuality is wrong or evolution is wrong. Here are all the options:

- BOTH EVOLUTION AND HOMOSEXUALITY ARE WRONG. [This is the position of this writer and the position of the Word of God. It was also the official, legal position of the British government for many centuries. It is also the official position of many religions, including Roman Catholicism and Islam.]
- EVOLUTION IS CORRECT AND HOMOSEXUALITY IS WRONG. [Though many scientists believe this, none are courageous enough to say so publicly for fear of losing grants or jobs.]
- HOMOSEXUALITY IS CORRECT AND EVOLUTION IS WRONG. [Homosexuals that affirm this have to then conclude that all modern science that rests on evolution (e.g. all biology, cosmology, botany, and zoology) is wrong.]

I call for all rational people to examine this hypocrisy and establish the truth within their sphere of interest. Stop the lies, at least as far as your children are concerned. It is time to be intellectually honest.
